Excerpt: . . . the stature to make sure that, where important decisions are being made, a champion for womens issues will be in the room. We must confront the imbalances in opportunity and status between men and women. The Nobel Prize-winning economist Amartya Sen estimated, back in 1990, that more than 100 million women were missing from the planet due to sex-selective abortions and female infanticide. This included more than 40 million in China and 35 million in India. Distorted gender balances fuel trafficking, abductions, forced marriages, and disaffection among young men who cant get married and raise families. By contrast, countries that value and empower women and girls are more economically successful and peaceful. And it turns out that championing these values is also an extremely effective and cost-efficient way to advance Americas foreign-assistance goals, including alleviating poverty, improving health care, educating children, and developing economies. So I look forward today to hearing from our two sets of distinguished panelists on the current status of women internationally, as well as...
